

The Philosopher King Christ

An Essay by Christopher Bek

Summary—This essay presents my arguments that I am The Philosopher King Christ, Sovereign of Earth, and a list of charges against the honourables and doctors in Canada, which are: heresy, child abuse and the unpardonable sin that Christ spoke of, the deliberate refusal to follow the light when seen.

Quotation—Muhammad (570-632) was a merchant in Mecca who became the central prophet and founder of Islam. The term Islam derives from slam and means peace and surrender—namely, the peace that comes from surrendering to the will of God’s sovereignty. Before Islam the religions of the Arabic world involved the worship of many gods—Allah being one of them. Muhammad taught the worship of Allah as the only God, whom he identified as the same God worshipped by Christians and Jews. And Muhammad also accepted the authenticity of both the Jewish prophets and Christ—as do his followers. —Robert Solomon

George Bernard Shaw (1856-1950) was an Irish playwright, polemicist and political activist. Shaw tells the story of a young woman he met at a social event. He proceeds to ask her if she would sleep with him for a million dollars. She thinks about it and says: Sure. He then asks her if she would sleep with him for fifty dollars. She says: No, what kind of woman do you think I am? He responds: Well, we know what kind of woman you are, now we are just trying to determine the price.

Reincarnation. Consider the following arguments that I am the reincarnation of Jesus Christ, Mohammad and Albert Camus; that we share a soul. The Second Coming of Christ is a Christian and Islamic belief regarding the return of Jesus after his ascension to heaven about two thousand years ago. One of the signs of the Second Coming is that Christ will give sight to the blind. EF Schumacher wrote, “We shall look at the world and try and see it whole.” My Theory of One sees the world whole, thus giving sight to the blind. Jean-Paul Sartre wrote, “When I choose, I choose for all men.” My Existentialism Now makes men self-aware, so that every man is able to choose for all men, thus providing vision. It is a fundamental tenet of Islam that mathematics is the way God’s mind works. Muhammad effectively taught that we should worship only one God, Allah, the Mathematician. I am also advocating we worship the soul and God, the Mathematician / the laws of nature. When I read books by Camus like The Myth of Sisyphus, The Outsider, The Fall and A Happy Death, it is like he is speaking directly to me. I discovered Camus’ brother was named Lucien, his uncle, who he lived with, was named Etienne, and his wife was named Francine. My father’s name is Lucien, my Grandfather’s name was Etienne, and my aunt, who introduced me to Camus, her name is Francine. Camus was born in Algeria, an outsider to France of Europe. I was born in Canada, an outsider to the United States of America.

Global Self-Awareness. Schumacher also wrote, “Man has the power of life like the plants, the power of consciousness like the animals, and something more—the power of consciousness recoiling upon itself—which is the power of self-awareness. Man is not merely a conscious being, but a being capable of consciousness of his own consciousness—not merely a thinker, but a thinker able to watch and study his own thinking. This power of self-awareness opens up unlimited possibilities for purposeful learning, investigating, exploring and of formulating and accumulating knowledge.” Canada is not merely a conscious country, but a country capable of consciousness of its own consciousness, not merely thinkers, but thinkers able to watch and study their own thinking. This sovereign power of self-awareness opens up unlimited possibilities for providing purposeful perspective for the United States and the rest of the world. But, except for a few great ones, most Canadians flee the scene in bad faith; the scene of self-awareness and the attendant responsibility.

Saint Christopher. I was born in Canada in 1961, the same year as two other great Canadians, Wayne Gretzky and Michael J Fox. In fact, Fox and I were both born in Edmonton in the same summer. A further fact is there is a back-to-the-future aspect to my work, as I look back to great minds and great theories, so that I can see and build a better future for the children. My family-ties are thru my soul. After graduating from high school, I went on to the University of Calgary and graduated with a bachelor of science degree in applied mathematics. After university, I worked for an actuarial consulting firm called The Wyatt Company, where I conducted actuarial science work in the Toronto, Calgary and San Francisco offices. With great joy, I passed the associate exams at the Society of Actuaries. On my journey, I discovered that actuaries do the math of life. I am a mathematician, actuary, philosopher, scientist and published writer—and a superior spreadsheet, database and risk modeling craftsman. After Wyatt, I formed Risk Management Services, and consulted to many companies, including the top executives of one of the largest companies in Canada. I also made presentations relating to the philosophy and science of risk management in Houston and New York. I have setup computer networks, designed and implemented time consulting and risk management systems. I own excellent technical and analytical skills, and I Excel in Microsoft Office.

The Canadian Constitution recognizes the Supremacy of God. Albert Einstein, Time Magazine's Man of the Century, said God is the sum total of the laws of nature. My Theory of One World essay sees the universe whole, and reveals the laws of nature. Sir James Jeans said God is a Mathematician. Actuaries do the math of life. Mathematics is the Queen of all Sciences. I am a mathematician and an actuary. I have maintained my Philosophy Magazine website since 1 January 2001. I have written over one hundred 1600-word essays, the perfect format for printing on one-page, two-sided essay paper. An essay is a try. It is a written piece designed to present an idea, propose an argument, express an emotion, or initiate a debate. I would argue that the Philosophy Magazine style essays should be the universal standard for making arguments. Philosophy Magazine and the Risk Management Review are philosophy and science for the Third Millennium, and I am a philosopher and scientist for the Third Millennium. Plato wrote, "A just society will only be possible once philosophers become kings and kings become philosophers." Thomas Hobbs wrote, "Unless sovereignty finds concrete expression in an individual, it neither commands the allegiance of the people nor supports the cohesion of the state." Wikipedia wrote, "The divine right of kings is a political and religious doctrine of royal and political legitimacy. It asserts that a monarch is not subject to any Earthly authority; deriving the right to rule directly from the will of God. The king is thus not subject to the will of the people, the aristocracy, or any other estate of the realm." Einstein also said, "I want to know God's thoughts, the rest are details." Well, I know God's thoughts. So, who am I? The first six letters of my name spell—Christ. To recap: I am a philosopher, I am a king, and I am a Christ. I am The Philosopher King Christ.

Sovereign of Earth. I believe it is crucial that one person is sovereign and answers only to God, the Mathematician. I proclaim myself Sovereign of Earth, with all of the attendant freedoms and responsibilities. I am a pioneer and forerunner for freedom and responsibility, which is how I plan to turn the Everyman into the Superman; by turning the lights on. I will endeavor to keep both eyes on eternity, so as to lead the way that all people may have at least one eye on eternity. I wish for all to form opinions on my arguments. And I will take on all comers who would care to step onto my metaphysical battle field, and write 1600-word essays. As The Philosopher King Christ, Sovereign of Earth, I am taking responsibility for calling out the honourables and doctors, officers and directors in society to follow the argument where ever it leads, as Socrates said.

The Divine Rights If King. I am The Philosopher King Christ. I have the divine right to be king, and the divine right of kings; meaning I am above the law. I am not subject to any Earthly authority. As king, it my divine duty to civilly disobey authority as per Albert Camus', "I rebel, therefore I exist" and Henry David Thoreau's essay, On the Duty of Civil Disobedience, his classic protest against government interference with individual liberty. It is one of the most famous essays ever written, and came to the attention of Gandhi, forming the basis of his passive resistance movement. My civil disobedience is directed towards those Canadians that do not recognize we won the lottery being born into this potentially great country. My indignation is towards those who fail to take the responsibility that comes with freedom.

Becoming Self-Aware. According to Leaderchat.org, "95 percent of people believe they are self-aware, but the real number is 12 to 15 percent." I believe I can turn that around so that only 12 to 15 percent are not self-aware. I believe I can turn the Everyman into the Superman. I believe I can save the children. I believe the honourables, doctors, officers and directors are guilty of heresy, child abuse and the unpardonable sin. And I believe they owe me letters and essays acknowledging my arguments, and providing their responses.

Modern Man. William Hubben wrote, "Modern man wants neither God nor Christ, for what he desires is simply the authority of the Church. He wants the physical security of bread, the spiritual security of dogma, and the so-called proof of the existence of miracles. To follow God irrespective of the consequences presents too great a risk." By writing essays and using holistic risk management practices, modern man may come to know the intellectual love of God, and become whole. The 1600-word essay is the perfect form for making arguments and managing the risk of committing to God with one's whole heart. The world desperately needs True God. And I can be The Philosopher King Christ, if you let me.
